Autoliv Expansion at Winstanley's 1001 Pawtucket Blvd Nears Completion

Posted January 12, 2012

Autoliv Inc's 60,000 square feet of office and production space at 1001 Pawtucket Boulevard in Lowell, which is owned by Winstanley Enterprises, is slated for completion in February 2012.

Margulies Perruzzi Architects provided space planning and interior design services for this project.

Autoliv is expanding its Lowell, Mass. facility where it develops radar technology and driver assistance features including Blind Spot Detection and Forward Collision Warning. The company currently occupies 20,000 square feet of space in the building.

Margulies Perruzzi Architects (MPA) designed a more open, collaborative work environment for Autoliv's engineers.

The project scope includes 30,000 square feet of office space with offices, workstations, conference rooms, and open work areas, and 30,000 square feet of production, engineering, and testing space, including ground floor space for vehicle testing. Autoliv's reception area will feature display space and the facility will have a tour route throughout the facility for clients and visitors to observe Autoliv's product development and production.
