

Margulies promotes Latto to associate

BOSTON, MA Margulies & Associates, an architectural and interior design firm, promoted Jennifer Latto, NCIDQ, associate AIA, to the position of associate within the firm.

Latto has directed projects for The State Room, Carat Fusion and The Coyle Company since joining Margulies in 2004. The firm's design of a new entrance lobby and ballroom renovation for The State Room's Harborside Salon received a Citation of Excellence in the Buildings Interiors category from Buildings Magazine and was honored by the New England Section of the Illuminating Engineering Society of North America (IESNA), the recognized technical authority on illumination.

In addition to her work at Margulies, Latto recently served as a judge for the Chandler Awards for Design, an annual competition to engender strong commercial design and design excellence in the use of Patcraft Commercial Carpets.

"Jennifer's keen sense of design, coupled with her ability to absorb the specific needs of each project, has proven a very successful combination to our clients," said Marc Margulies, AIA, principal of Margulies & Associates. "She has established herself as an award-winning designer and we are thrilled to have her at Margulies."

Latto holds a Bachelor of Science in Design from Clemson University and a Bachelor of Architecture from North Carolina State University.
